

Distance-Treatment Through Public Network

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method and system of providing biological distance-treatment through a public network includes at least a treatment instrument which is electrically connected 5 with an information connection system for providing a treatment for a registered user, wherein a treatment information data package sent from a service provider via the information connection system through the public network to provide digital treatment signals to control the treatment, wherein the treatment information data package is selected from the treatment information database based on a treatment request sent from 10 the information connection system to the service provider and the health information profile of the registered user in the service provider.

FOIA b 7 - D